PRESIDENT ARTHUR'S APPOINTEES. Their Subsequent Career and Political Advancement-Luck of Territorial Officers.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, May 11 .- The men who were appointed to federal offices in the Territories by President Arthur have all had very good luck, and their subsequent careers have been an indorsement of his judgment in making selections. He was often complained of because of his deliberation, but no President was ever more careful in investigating the character and capacity of those he intrusted with high responsibilities. Gilbert A. Pierce, who was made Governor by him, is now United States Senator: A. C. Mellette, whom he sent from Indiana to be Register of the Land Office at Watertown, is Governor of South Dakota; G. C. Moody, whom he appointed justice of the Territorial Court, is Senator from South Dakota; Watson C. Squire, who was appointed Governor of Washington, is now Senator from that State, and I. L. Wilson, whom he sent out from Indiana, as receiver of public moneys at Spokane Falls, is Representative from Washington: Mr. Dubeis, who is now Delegate from Idaho and will be one of the Senators when the State is admitted, was selected as United States marshal of that Territory, and G. N. Schoup, who is likely to be the other Senator, was appointed Governor. The two Senators from Wyoming, when it is admitted, will be Carey and Warren. The former was made United States district attorney by President Arthur and the latter Governor. There was never a more remarka-ble record. Three of Arthur's Cabinet are dead: Frelinghuysen, Brewster and Folger. Two, Teller and Chandler, are in the Sen-ate; Lincoln is minister to England and Gresham Judge of the United States Dis-

FLAWS IN IMMIGRATION LAWS. Nothing to Prohibit Undesirable Classes

from Coming Into This Country Overland. WASHINGTON, May 11.-Assistant Secretary Tichenor has written a letter to the House committee on appropriations in regard to the immigration laws and the Chinese exclusion act. He calls attention to the fact that, while the immigrant law prohibits the landing in this country of convicts, lunatics, idiots and paupers, who come by water in vessels of any description, it fails to meet the case of immigrants of this character who may enter this country by land from contiguous terri-tory. The department has received re-ports that a large number of these undesirable people have recently drifted into this country from Mexico and Canada. Mr. Tichenor therefore suggests an amend ment to the law to prevent a continuance of this kind of immigration. He recommends that the appropriation for the enforcement of the alien contract-labor law be increased from $50,000 to $75,000, and that the appropriation for the enforcement of the Chinese exclusion act be increased from $30,000 to $50,000, and also that the Secretary be authorized to return to China, at government expense, all Chinamen found in the United States in violation of

LEGISLATION FOR WORKMEN. Bills Relating to Convict Labor and Providing

Extra Pay for Government Employes. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, May 11.-The House committee on labor has under consideration several bills that are of importance to workmen throughout the country. The two bills that carry with them the most interest are on the subject of convict labor, one measure prohibiting the sale of any goods manufactured by convict labor, and the other prohibiting convict labor from entering into competition with free labor. Mr. Wade, the chairman of the committee, is assured that both measures will be passed during the present session of Congress. Another bill before the same committee of hardly less interest is that which provides for the payment of all laborers, mechanics and others employed by the government for all the time over eight hours a day they may have worked since the passage of the eight-hour law. This bill carries with it an appropriation of $5,060,000, and it is very doubtful whether it will ever receive consideration at the hands of the House, although the labor committee will report it favorably at an early date. The opposition to this bill comes from the committee on rules, which has exclusive control of the time of the House, and which is opposed to assigning a date for its consideration because of the appropriation of $5,000,000 proposed by the Office-Holders Charged to Illinois Who Are Not Genuine Suckers Must Go.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, May 11 .- The Illinois Republican Association, which is composed mostly of government officials residing in Washington, and clerks in the executive departments, was resusciated two or three weeks ago from the comatose state in which it had been living ever since the administration of President Arthur, and now meets every Saturday night. The first work to be done by the association is to search out and expose a number of office-holders who are credited to Illinois on the rolls of the Civil-service Commission, but really came from and belong to other States. According to the present organization of the civil service each State can have no more than its share of appointments according to population. Many of the Eastern States, and particularly those which immediately adjoin Washington, have so many men on the rolls that the late appointees, in order to secure places, have been charged to the West. The Illinois Republican Association proposes to smoke out the impostors, and a committee of three was appointed, who are to prepare a list of all the genuine Illinois people holding office in Washington, and prefer charges before the Civil-service Com-mission against others who falsely claim to be from that State.

FOND OF LITTLE BOYS.

How Wealthy Senator Stanford Treats th Senate Pages-Presents and Banquets.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. Washington, May 11.—Senator Stanford is very fond of boys, and prefers their society to that of people of his own age. The pages of the Senate have a particular attraction for him, and he never fails to use an opportunity to add to their comfort and enjoyment. On Christmas days they always receive a handsome present from him. On Thanksgiving days he always gives them a dinner; on the Fourth of July they have some kind of a remembrance, and one or two times a year they are invited to his house to dine. These dinners are just as fine as any he would provide for his senatorial associates. They are served in courses and by liveried waiters, and the bill of fare is made up of the delicacies most alluring to the boyish patates. During and after the dinner the Senator usually provides some form of entertainment, and last night, when their spring dinner was given, they had recitations and music of a high order.

MINOR MATTERS.

What Mrs. Owen, Wife of the Indiana Representative, Says About Woman Suffrage.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, May 11 .- To-day's Gazette. of this city, has a lot of views from promipent women on woman suffrage, from which the Journal correspondent takes this: "There are women of culture and high intelligence who do not believe in woman there was a severe fire at Fukusdima, April suffrage. One of these is Mrs. William D. 20. The Shoyokwan and fifty-two houses Owen, wife of Representative Owen, from | were burned and seven persons injured.

Logansport, Ind. Mrs. Owen is a gentle-woman of the thoroughly feminine type, apparently engrossed with so-ciety affairs, but by no means so in reality. 'I am not infavor of suffrage for women,' Mrs. Owen said. 'I think it would have a tendancy to cheapen her in the estimation of mankind. But I do believe in women understanding business, and having every opportunity to further their interest in that way. My heart is often pained at the sight of a woman struggling for a livelihood; but their want of success is often as much want of tact as anything else. They expect privileges because they are women, and take unbusinesslike advantages. I can make a legal document, pay my taxes and buy or sell a piece of land without the help of a man. At least I have done so several times."

General Notes.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, May 11.-Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Huston, with their guests, Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Sellers, took a long drive into the remote environs of Washington to-day, and dined at a suburban inn. Mrs. Huston, daughter and son will soon return to Connersville, and enjoy their beautiful newlymodeled home, and they will have frequent visits from Mr. Huston.

The meeting of the executive commit-tee of the national Republican committee, called to meet in Washington to-morrow, has, owing to the absence of Mr. Clarkson, been postponed indefinitely.

Losses by Fire.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. VINCENNES, Ind., May 11.—This morning the livery stable of John Graeter was burned. The fire department was unable to save the structure, but the flames were stayed in their progress toward adjacent buildings. The twenty horses tied in their stalls were cut loose, and led out of the burning building, and saved. About thirty vehicles were destroyed. About thirty-five tons of hay, and large quantities of corn were burned up. Loss, $15,000; insurance,

WILLETS POINT, L. I., May 11.-Fire broke out in a building known as the pon-toon-house, in the fort, about 9:50 o'clock last night. The building and its con-tents were destroyed. The house, was 80 by 100 feet, and was used for storage. The contents were six fish torpedoes, a base-line transit, said to be the only pontoons, tools and paints. The total loss is estimated at $80,000. The fire burned

BRADFORD, Pa., May 11.-Fifteen twostory frame business houses of the village of Elliottville, N. Y., were destroyed by fire this afternoon. They were located on Main and Monroe streets. The village has no fire department, and assistance was given them from Salamanca and Bradford. The loss is about $40,000; insured.

The Fight in Mr. Randall's District. PHILADELPHIA, May 11.-Richard Vaux, ex-Mayor of this city, who, when secretary of legation at London, in 1836, danced with Queen Victoria, and who is the most picturesque Democrat in Philadelphia, is likely to be nominated for Congress in Samuel J. Randall's district, and will stand a good chance of being elected. Mr. McAleer, seeing the hopelessness of a further struggle, to-night withdrew from the contest, and his dele-gates, at the suggestion of 'Squire McMullin, will all probably vote for Vaux. The Gentner delegates, who are controlled by ex-Postmaster Harrity, will also, it is understood, be willing to accept Vaux, and Dittman's friends say that he is ready to get out for the ex-Mayor. This is the sitnation now, and it promises to result in Vaux's unanimous nomination in the convention to-morrow. This will precipitate a direct fight between Vaux and Minister to Brazil Robert Adams.

Bound to the Floor with Irons. SINGAPORE, via San Francisco, May 11 .-A horrible piece of cruelty has been discovered here. A young Arab noble of twenty-three, of handsome appearance, was found in a deserted house fastened in irons, and bound with outstretched limbs to the floor. There was great trouble in liberating him. He was so emaciated that he could not stand. At the hospital he said that he had been eight days in one position. He was traveling round the world under the tutorship of his uncle. He received the news while here that he had come into a large fortune. and his uncle then hired thugs who spirited him away and bound him. They then tried to make him sign away part of his fortune. He had no food and was very brutally treated. He may die. The uncle cannot be found.

A Highbinder Tragedy in California. CHICO, Cal., May 11.-A terrible high binder tragedy occurred on a ranch in Colusa county some time last week. Ah Won, Ah Chung and Ah Toy, Chinese wood-choppers, occupied an isolated cabin. Not having been seen for several days, a visit was paid to the cabin yesterday, and the bodies of Ah Chung and Ah Toy found, literally cut to pieces and partially devoured by coyotes. The cutting had been done with an ay. Ah Won is ting had been done with an ax. Ah Won is missing. Last Tuesday a strange Chinaman called on a physician in Colusa to have a pistol wound treated, saying he had been shot in a quarrel with two companions. The wound was not very serious, and he soon disappeared.

WARD'S REPLY TO SPALDING

He Says the National League Is Killing Base-Ball and Not the Brotherhood.

Secretary Brunell Also Puts in a Last Word-Yesterday's Contests Between Association Clubs-Good Game at Lafayette.

PHILADELPHIA, May 11 .- John M. Ward, who is here with his Brooklyn team, in speaking of Mr. Spalding's remarks that interest in the game of ball is dying out owing to divided local interest caused by disorganization of the Players' League, said; "It will be hardly worth while to reply to Mr. Spalding's remark except for the wide publicity of his statement that interest in the base-ball game is dying out. This is a singular statement for a base-ball magnate to make, even if it were true, which it is not, in my opinion, and can only be explained on the theory that in pursuance of its determination to rule or ruin the ball game, the old League has now taken a new tack. Realizing that it cannot live in its fight against the Players' League under present conditions, certain of its officials are rattling about from city to city having themselves interviewed 'on the present state of affairs,' and attempting to throw cold water on public interest in the game. It is noteworthy that all this talk about 'no interest,' the 'absence of local pride' and meager attendance comes from National League sources. Not a single Players' League club has yet made any complaint. If there is any falling off in general public interest in the game it is not due to the presence of two clubs in one city and a consequent destruction of local pride. The same conditions have existed before, and local pride was not affected. With two clubs in Philadelphia for years both have always drawn well, and notwithstanding the strong following of the Athletics, the Philadelphia League club entered the field in 1882, and managed to build up a paying constituand managed to build up a paying constituency. A decrease in interest, if any, is due to the reckless tactics of the old League in its attempts to kill off a fair business rival and maintain its monopoly of the game. What with false and libelous stories about every player associated with the new league, charges of bad faith and open bribery, the magnates stopped at nothing, and it would not be strange if many people, disgusted by all this and confused by League misrepresentations, determined to stay away from the game altogether. The League might still have pulled through had it not chosen, with suicidal madness, to adopt a schedule conflicting at every point with ours after we had published ours and giving it a chance to avoid conflict; but now, realizing its mistake, it has not the courage to make a change, but tries to kill the interest in the games of the Players' League. I honestly believe that rather than see the Players' League succeed the old League would prefer to see the national game dead, and would itself glad-ly inflict the blow. There is but one thing left for them to do against us, and it may be expected at any time, that is charge us with "hipprodroming" and dishonest play. That will be their last stab, and some of them will soon be found desperate enough to deal in it. But their worst efforts will do but little harm now. The public has realized, even though the magnates have not, that 'national game' and 'National League' are not synonymous. The game will live on even though both the National and Players' leagues should pass out of existence. Its life depends not on any league or association, but upon the support of the public, and what the latter demands is a honest contest by representative clubs composed of the most skillful players."

However, it isn't invincible by a long shot, as Mr. Stern has already found

President Day had a fatherly talk with several of his players the other day. He told them that he regretted very much the position the club held in the championship race, but still he had no complaints to make. "You have been unlucky, that's all," said he. "In one or two games there ought to have been better playing done, but we will let that pass by. We now go on to our own grounds for a long string of games. Let us hope that we may all work together, and in that spirit I am certain the club will show a marked improvement."

THIS IS THE CLIMAX.

Dishonesty and Hypocrisy of a Mugwump Organ as Shown in One Instance. Milwaukee Sentinel.

To anybody who is equal to it, who is armed with patience, and curiosity, and penetration, the editor of the New York Evening Post would be a valuable psychological study. No master of character-study ever got hold of his like; in the world's great museum there is no freak whose label will fit him exactly; he is a unique and precious specimen of whose value even Dr. Dana has but feeble and inadequate conception. In applying the alethometer, or measure of veracity, to this case, Dr. Dana seems to regard it as merely an extraordinary instance of a lack of power to tell the truth; but it is more complicated than that. There is an more complicated than that. There is an ingenuity manifest in his perversions that must puzzle and defeat the ordinary student of mental phenomena. We lay down our hand and rise from the game? This is the way of it. For three years the Republican Legislature of New York has passed bills for ballot reform. These bills have had the enthusiastic approval of the editor of the Post and of all mugwumps. Gov. Hill has refused to sign them. Modifications have been made to meet Hill's objections have been made to meet Hill's objections. tions have been made to meet Hill's objec-tions, and finally he has been forced, as he almost admits, to sign the last. Well, one would think that the Republican effort to accomplish the reform would win the commendation of the editor of the Post, while Hill would come in for censure for compelling undesirable modifications. But we assure you that this is exactly what the amazing editor of the Post says: "The Republican attitude in favor of the reform has been about the last remaining attraction which that party possessed for independent voters. By the removal of the issue through the enactment of the law, the Republicans will lose and the Democrats vill gain." Cogitate, reflect over this statement. The editor of the Post says, in other words:

"We have been compelled to respect you
Republicans because you have been working for this reform; but now that you have accomplished it, there is no longer any reason why we should respect you. We independent voters have stood with you because you were working for the reform—but now that you have achieved it we can go over to the Democrats." The editor of the Post declares in words that "by the removal of the issue through the enactment of the law the Republicans will lose and the Democrats will gain." We give it up. There are immoral deeps which ordinary plummets cannot sound.

There is an ingenuity in this immoral and ungrateful perversity that would bowl over Machiavelli—an ingenuity so profound, so novel, so instructive as almost to justify its unparalleled baseness.

IS CLEVELAND IN THE RACE? Some Democrats Want Him as a Candidate. but Not New York Democrats. Philadelphia Press.

The visit of ex-President Cleveland to Washington, last week, has given the worshipers of that distinguished Democrat snother opportunity for an outburst. They have taken pretty full advantage of it. The chief point gained by this is to show that there are Democrats now on earth who still think that Grover Cleveland is destined to be the candidate of the party two years hence. It is not improbable that, taking it the country over, these Democrats are in a majority.

And yet the present situation is far from favorable to Mr. Cleveland's nomination, without regarding in any way what may happen in the course of two years. It has been made certain that this nomination, if made at all, must be over the head of the New York delegation. No one with the commonest political instinct now supposes that Cleveland will get the delegation from his own State. He secured it in 1888 under protest, and eight out of every ten men in it were personally unfavorable to him. His renomination was forced upon New York by outside pressure, and as much from Re-publican States where he could get no electoral votes as from any other source. New York did not want him, and so declared with emphasis on the same day that

Governor Hill was re-elected. New York does not want Cleveland any mcre now than it did then. The party organization in the State has passed into the bands of Governor Hill's friends almost wholly, and it is just as certain as any event, so far in the future can be, that Governor Hill will have the support of the delegation from his State in the next national convention. He will be presented as a Democrat who can carry the State, while Cleveland cannot. The warning of 1888 will be repeated, and the Democrats of the country will be notified that if they want to make even a hopeful contest in New York they must take the candidate that New York wants and not make a nomine

New York wants, and not make a nomina-tion over her head. The failure of two years ago will be the key-note.

The Cleveland sentiment outside of New York is probably as strong as it ever was, but the Democrats cannot hope to elect their candidate without New York. They might even carry the State without winning, but they cannot lose it and win un-less there shall be such a political revolution throughout the country as cannot now be contemplated. Cleveland cannot carry New York, and to force his nomination against the dominant Democratic sentiment of that State, as would have to be done, would only aggravate the situation.

The logic of events to-day puts Cleve-land out of the field. His friends are making a good deal of noise, and may regard him as the only possible nominee. They will endeavor to make it appear that he alone can lead a so-called tariff-reform fight, and they will hold up the familiar but fragile temptation of winning certain Republican States, but in the round-up they will run against the anti-Cleveland stone fence erected by the Democrats of New York. It is not a very rash thing to say that Cleveland is not likely to be in the race.

International Copyright. Philadelphia Press.

International copyright defeat is being charged to the Republican party by some unwise independent and Democratic papers. This is nonsense; and if these papers want to see the bill passed it is worse than nonsense. The Republican Senate passed the bill in the last Congress. It stands ready to pass it in this. In the last Congress the Democratic House and Speaker did not even permit a vote to be taken on the main issue, and the bill, if it had been reached, would have been buried out of sight. The Republican party is the only one which supports intelligent reforms o this character. Look at "free art." Who ever heard of President Cleveland and Secretary Bayard making the special plea for the removal of the duty on art which has been made this winter by President Harrison and Secretary Blaine?

Carolina Democrats Frightened,

Charleston News and Courier (Dem.) The indications are plain that the Republicans are preparing to make another and determined contest, with all the aid that the administration can give them, for the election of Congressmen at least in this State, and the Democracy of the several districts would do well to consider these indications seriously. We shall probably have our hands full in fighting the common enemy. It is not wise to let the present dissensions in our ranks go too far, if we would avoid occasion for bitter and unavailing regret a little later.

Wealthy Husband's Efforts to Wear Out

Deserted Wife by the Law's Delays. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. COLUMBUS, May 11.—The suit of the State against Morris L. Johnson, of the firm of Payne, Johnson & Co., of Franklin, will occupy the attention of a jury in the Circuit Court here this week. Florence J. Johnson, who occupies a residence on Walnut street, Cincinnati, and who married Johnson in that city in 1885, is the prosecuting witness. Johnson, after living with his Cincinnati wife for two years in that city, suddenly left there—as did a woman who resided near him. All effort to find them failed until 1888, when it was discovered that the couple had been living in Franklin, Ind., as husband and wife, and that Johnson d accumulated considerable money. A indictment was found against Johnson in the Johnson Circuit Court, but through his adroitness and that of his attorneys, the case was postponed from time to time, with a view of discouraging the Cincinnati wife. After three attempts to try the case at Franklin, the witnesses coming all the way from Cincinnati, the case was each time continued on applica-tion of defendant. Growing tired of this, the judge of the Circuit Court of that place informed the defendant that under no circumstances would the case be again continued. The defendant then resorted last privilege the law al made an affidavit for a change of venue, the case being sent to this county for trial. At the last term of Circuit Court here the defendant filed an affidavit for a continuance. The judge granted the continuance and informed the defendant when so doing that he would refuse any further application of this kind, and that he must prepare for trial at this term of court, which commences to-morrow. The peculiar feat-ure in the case when it first developed was Johnson's attempt to make the Cincinnati wife believe that he was not the Johnson she married in Cincinnati but another man. His photograph, how-ever, was produced, and the loss of the first finger of his right hand by an accident in Cincinnati prior to his marriage was a distinguishing mark that he could not well get around, and his only hope since has been to delay the final trial and tire the witnesses out. Organized Barn-Burners.

He was visited by his wife, and it is said they have confessed that Harvey Campbell was implicated in the affray. Hence his arrest to-day. Several citizens of Humbolt visited the scene of the murder since the inquest, and find a second buggy-track from King's house to a point within a few feet of where the dead man's body was found. This indicates that after King and Rogers had a fight with bare fists. King probably drove to his house, less than a quarter of a mile away, and that he and Campbell may have returned to the field where Rogers was at work and dealt the blow which caused his death. King's second daughter says Campbell was absent from their house for some little time before her father came home on the evening of the came into the house he could not hold a paper still enough to read. A Loss to His Party. Philadelphia North American.

The sudden death of Senator Beck, of Kentucky, is a serious loss to the country because he was a man whom his party could very ill spare. In the abundance of light and inflammable material in the Democratic ranks this hard-headed Scotchman did good service as a restraining force. He probably was much more effective behind the scenes of congressional proceed-ings than on the floor of the Senate. Nor was his influence the less felt for his being one of the most outspoken and sharptongued partisans in Congress. There was nothing of the mugwump about him to impair his weight with his associates. He made no pretense of raising above partisan levels. He was a hard and determined fighter. But his shrewd sense stood his party in good stead in more than one castered.
